

GOVELESKIE AND SCHUPP NEW STARS

By JACK VEIOCK. New York, June 19.—Two young pitchers who are earning their...

Schupp is perhaps the most remarkable of the pair, because he is a southpaw, and as a rule the southpaws have a tough time when they turn their steps toward the pitching ball of fame.

McGraw has kept his weather eye in the work of young Mr. Schupp for five years. He has always maintained that Schupp had the makings of a wonderful pitcher, but through Ferdie failed to show him anything sensational in the pitching line until last fall he clung to him, and the season of 1917 has so far proven that McGraw knew what he was about.

Schupp is in his twenty-fifth year, and he is without a doubt the best right-handed pitcher in the National League. He is considered by many to be equally as good as Ruth and Leonard, the famous Boston pitchers, and from the pitching he has done so far this season there is no great argument that can be advanced to offset Schupp's standing in the baseball ranks.

Has Everything Necessary. Schupp has everything a pitcher needs. He is a quick thinker and a good fielder. His arm is strong as steel, and he has a devastating assortment of fastballs as well as a change of pace. But best of all, when it is considered that Schupp is a southpaw, he has control. The umpires, and the boys who have to bat against Schupp ought to know best of all what he has up his sleeve, and without variation every one who has quizzed regarding Schupp has come through with the same verdict. He's a wonder, and he has not yet reached the zenith as a pitcher.

Schupp has a formidable young rival for pitching fame in Stanley Coveleskie, the Cleveland right-hander. Coveleskie is twenty-six years old, and will celebrate his twenty-seventh birthday on July 13. Like Schupp, young Coveleskie has youth on his side, and today he stands out as a pitching phenom who is just beginning to come into his own as a winner.

Coveleskie's work with the Cleveland Indians has been one of the biggest features of the season in baseball as pitching goes. He has pitched against every club in the league, and has come through on the long end of a big majority of his games. He is one of the most effective pitchers in the big leagues this year, for he has started already to pile up a string of shutouts, having pitched five shutouts up to June 19. Last year he allowed an average of 3.3 runs per nine innings pitched, but his 1917 record will show a smaller percentage.

Compared to his southpaw brother on the Detroit club, Stanley Coveleskie promises to do the most to plaster fame on the family moniker, for a though the older Coveleskie is a wonderful performer his kid brother is coming on so fast that he bids fair to pass him as a winning pitcher, and at that he has his work cut out for him.

McGraw Temperament. According to several members of the New York Giants, not to mention a few prominent Cincinnati fans who saw the fracas between John McGraw and Empire Byron in "Redville" recently, the doughy little manager of the Polo Grounds was justified in taking a walk on the manager. Byron refused to make a statement in his own defense after the trouble occurred, and because of this he has been generally credited with being on the wrong side of the fence.

The trouble which led McGraw to hang his jaw on the muscular leg of Bill Byron grew out of a muddled contention that McGraw is a rowdy by nature and that he was driven out of Baltimore because of it. McGraw and his friends assert that nothing which happened in the playing of the game that day caused him to hit Byron, and if this is the case the trouble was a personal affair pure and simple.

Governor Toner hung a suspension on McGraw when the case was reported to him. It was the only thing he could do until he had had time to investigate, and McGraw's willingness to make an affidavit won him popular support.

ARGENTINE FEELS SHIPPING FAMINE

By JOHN W. WHITE, JR. Buenos Aires, June 19.—The participation of the United States in the European war is seriously hampering Argentine interests, as well as United States interests, in Argentina.

As commerce with Europe fell away Argentine trade with the United States proportionately increased. Argentina imported from North America a most all the products that formerly had been purchased in Europe.

Now all this traffic receives a serious blow by the requisition of ships flying the American flag. Argentine transports cannot replace the lost shipping, as they are required for the exclusive carrying of coal, the scarcity of which seriously threatens many industries.

It appears certain that, if it has not already done so secretly, the Argentine government will in the near future begin diplomatic conversations at Washington looking toward the fulfillment of present contracts and the obtaining of governmental permission for a continuance of commercial activities between United States ports and Buenos Aires.

BOATS MUST HAVE LICENSES. Boats not licensed in this district will be subject to seizure, according to Lieutenant Wentz, head of the eighth naval district reserves.

Officers Reelected. James A. Johnson was reelected president of the Fruit Handlers Benevolent association at the meeting Sunday. All other officers were reelected.

Stockholm the Center of Socialist Conferences

Washington, June 19.—The National Geographic society issues the following war geography bulletin on Stockholm, now so prominently in the public eye as the convention city of the Socialists.

"Although it is frequently styled 'the Venice of the north,' owing to the fact that it is built upon a number of islands and peninsulas, Stockholm, the picturesque capital of Sweden, bears small resemblance to the queen of the Adriatic, for whereas the Italian city is built upon a number of delta-formed fragments of land only a few feet above sea level, the inlets and promontories on which Stockholm stands are rugged granite rocks, which must be blasted away whenever a new building is erected.

"Few European capitals have experienced such rapid prosperity as Stockholm. It has much more than doubled in population since 1880, and in 1913 had overtaken and passed Washington, D. C., by more than 30,000. Among the commercial and industrial centers of Sweden it is in the vanguard, with extensive iron foundries, shipbuilding plants, sugar, tobacco, leather, cotton, soap, furniture and food products factories.

"Stockholm owes its foundation to Birger Jarl, a broad-minded and able statesman who married the sister of King Erik Eriksson and who upon the death of that sovereign ruled as regent for his own son, Valdemar, for sixteen years, during which time he inaugurated the establishment of Sweden's overseas empire by leading an expedition into Finland in 1249 and building the fortress of Tavastehus. Five years later he established a fortress on the rocky islet which lies south of the channel connecting Malar lake with the Baltic sea. This was the beginning of Staden (the city), which forms the heart of the present Swedish capital.

"Being built of wood, Stockholm was frequently swept by fire during its early history, and it also suffered greatly from periodic raids by the Danish kings. On one of the latter occasions (1520) the Danish monarch, Christian II, in order to make sure of his hold upon the Swedish country, assembled the leading nobles of the kingdom in the Stor-Torg, the central and highest point on Staden island, and there had them decapitated. Thus the 'Stockholm Blood Bath' phrase came to designate this spot. In the Stor-Torg is the exchange, where the leading factors in Sweden's business world congregate at 1 o'clock each day.

"The oldest church in Stockholm is the Storkyrka (great church), which is supposed to have been founded by Birger Karl in 1261, but which was rebuilt about two centuries ago. The most interesting sacred structure, however, is the Riddarholmsskyrka with its open-work east-tower spire rising to a height of nearly 300 feet. This is Stockholm's Westminster Abbey or Pantheon, for in it are buried the kings and heroes of the nation. Here rest the great warrior Gustavus Adolphus, and the able and enlightened Gustavus III, who abolished torture, granted liberty to the press, fostered commerce and science, and in return was assassinated at the instigation of disaffected nobles. Here also is the tomb of Bernadotte, one of Napoleon's generals who was elevated to a throne by his master, but who fought against the military genius when the latter's star of empire began to set.

"There are many magnificent public buildings in Stockholm, chief among which are: The royal palace, with its 800 apartments; the splendid riksdagens (parliament) house, completed twelve years ago at a cost of more than two and a half million dollars; the royal library, where one copy of every book published in Sweden must be filed and which boasts of one of the greatest collections of pamphlets and manuscripts in Europe, and the offices from which the Nobel fund is distributed. The royal collection of weapons is the finest in the world.

"Although Stockholm is within a few miles of being as far north as Cape Farewell, Greenland, ice breakers keep the harbor open in winter. Petrograd lies almost due east across the Baltic and the Gulf of Finland, a distance of 150 miles. Copenhagen is 330 miles in an air line to the southwest, and the German city of Danzig is the same distance due south.

SOUR ON CHICAGO JOY SEEKERS

Chicago, June 19.—Mayor J. B. Smalley of Hammond, Ind., has announced a campaign against the revelry that daily passes away the time of Chicagoans and residents of northern Indiana who seek relaxation at Burnham, between this city and Hammond, and lying closely upon the outskirts of the Indiana city. The final act of the all-night revels which has served to bring down the wrath of the Hammond executive upon the saloons of the Illinois village was staged recently when a woman, acting the part of Lady Godiva, was driven down a street of Hammond in a motor car, after an all-night carousal in Burnham.

May 'Write Up' Social Leaders. Mayor Smalley has employed detectives and obtained the names of many prominent Indiana and Illinois people who have been present at some of the 'evening doings' at Burnham and he threatens now to make public their names in the columns of newspapers unless Hammond is freed of their untoward actions. He also threatens prosecutions under the Mann act.

'Enlarge Jail if Necessary'. 'We will build a bigger jail if necessary to stop the rowdiness, the speeding, the singing and such astounding spectacles as that of a nude woman in a motor car upon Goethin street,' Mayor Smalley said. 'I may not be able to close the resorts, but I shall be able to stop the traffic between Burnham and Indiana.'

RUNNING WITH LIGHTS OUT. STRUCK SHED; ARRESTED. Driving an auto truck without a light at the rate of twenty-eight miles an hour, Ernest Williams, negro, 2512 Howard street, attempted to turn at Howard avenue and Rampart streets early yesterday morning and ran upon the sidewalk. The shed in front of the restaurant of Carrara and Cajolas, at that corner, was knocked down. Williams was unharmed and arrested by Patrolman Krummel for driving an automobile while drunk. James Graham, negro, was also in the truck and received slight bruises.

ROBBED WHILE HE SLEPT. Morris Levy, 1123 Nashville avenue, was sleeping on the front porch of his home early yesterday morning when a thief entered through the rear. A gold watch and gold watch chain, worth $100, were stolen.

The Queer Part of Menin in War

Washington, D. C.—'News of the deportation of the whole civil population of the Belgian city of Menin by the Germans brings into the focus of world interest a community which is strangely connected with the inception of the world war.'

"It is hardly possible that had there been no Menin there might have been no world war, for it was at the siege of this little city in 1794 that the Bavarian army officer, Scharnhorst, won his first distinction. Subsequently he wrote a military paper on the escape of the Menin garrison and this brought him to the attention of staff officers of various German states and he was offered several commissions. He accepted service under the king of Prussia and from this time dates the beginning of activities that eventually resulted in the establishment of the present-day Prussian military system, which was the genesis of the holocaust of nations. It was Scharnhorst, the hero of Menin, who induced his sovereign to put aside the Prussian professional long-service army which has been shattered at the battle of Jena and to inaugurate the policy of universal service. This was not ordered, however, until after the organizer's death from a wound inflicted at the battle of Lutzen in 1813.

"Menin is, or was, a prosperous little town of 20,000 inhabitants engaged in the manufacture of lace, cotton goods, and tobacco. It nestles on the banks of the Rives Lys which here forms the boundary line between France and Belgium for a few miles.

"Less than seven miles to the northeast of Menin is Courtrai, scene of the famous battle of the Spurs in 1302. To the southwest, three and a half miles by rail, is the tobacco-manufacturing town of Weevies, whose 10,000 inhabitants are very proud of the Church of Medardus, founded at the beginning of the 13th century and rebuilt in 1383-1390. It had been rebuilt just before the outbreak of the war.

"Branch lines run from Menin to Roulers, 41 miles to the north, and to Roubaix, a mile or two nearer, in a southeasterly direction. Ypres is 15 miles by rail to the northwest. Lille lies to the south, a distance of 10 miles in an air line.
